

The
OFFICE OF NAVAL RESEARCH
presents:

Distinguished Lecture Series

featuring

Retired U.S. Marine Corps officer, author and research fellow in the Institute for National Strategic Studies' Center for Strategic Research at the National Defense University

Dr. T. X. Hammes, Distinguished Research Fellow

"Offshore Control: A strategy for an unlikely conflict"

EDUCATIONAL BACKGROUND

- 1975 Bachelor of Science in operations analysis, United States Naval Academy
- 1975 The Basic School
- 1983 U.S. Army Infantry Officer Advanced Course
- 1986 Research fellowship at the Mershon Center for Strategic Studies
- 1991 Marine Corps Command and Staff College
- 1993 Canadian National Defence College
- 2006 Master's of historical research, Oxford University
- 2008 Ph.D., modern history, Oxford University

ACADEMIA

Distinguished research fellow at the Institute for National Strategic Studies, National Defense University

Adjunct professor at Georgetown University

In his 30 years in the Marine Corps, T. X. Hammes served at all levels in the operating forces to include command of an intelligence battalion, an infantry battalion and the Chemical Biological Incident Response Force. He participated in stabilization operations in Somalia and Iraq, as well as training insurgents in various places.

Hammes has a master's in historical research and a doctorate in modern history from Oxford University. He is currently a distinguished research fellow at the Institute for National Strategic Studies, National Defense University and an adjunct professor at Georgetown University.

He is the author of "The Sling and the Stone: On War in the Twenty-First Century" and "Forgotten Warriors: The 1st Provisional Marine Brigade, the Corps Ethos, and the Korean War;" chapters in 12 books; and more than 100 articles and opinion pieces in the Washington Post, New York Times, Janes Defence Weekly and professional journals. He has lectured widely at U.S. and international staff and war colleges.